

going green

F&E Solutions considers itself a responsible steward of our environment. We are always striving to ensure the materials we use come from sustainable sources, and to work in an environmentally-friendly manner. The final result—is quality products that our customers can use without environmental or health concerns.

As we all know, California is leading the way with its Air Toxic Control Measure for formaldehyde emissions from composite wood products, and we are attuned to these changes. Both companies—Diversified Woodcrafts, Inc. and Shain Solutions, will have met these standards by the start date of January 1, 2009.
